ABSTRACT

This packet of materials was prepared to help participants at a Youth Service America conference to understand proposed youth service legislation and to lobby their Congressional representatives/senators for its passage. The packet contains a fact sheet on the Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources Omnibus Youth Community Service Bill (Kennedy Bill) that explains what the bill proposes--school-based youth service projects, full-time youth service corps, national service pilot projects, expansion of VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America) and financial support for senior service programs. It also contains information on President Bush's "thousand points of light" initiative for volunteer service; recommendations regarding federal involvement in the field of youth service from Youth Service America; tips for a successful Capitol visit; guidelines for lobbying for tax-exempt nonprofit organizations; lists of key Senate and House committee members; names and Washington office and telephone numbers for all Senators and Representatives; a Congressional schedule; and a map of Capitol Hill. YOUTH SERVICE AMERICA

June 8, 1989

Dear Conference Participant:

Welcome to the Youth Service America conference on national youth service issues and policy. We are gathering in Washington at a time when interest in youth service is high and Congressional action possible. Together, at this conference, we have an opportunity to play a central role in expanding the diversified field of youth service and translating successful youth service strategies into a national policy that will make the ethic of service an integral part of growing up in America.

We share a vision of America's future in which young people are active partners in shaping the country while they themselves make the transition to productive adulthood. Through youth service, we have an opportunity to fundamentally change the way we view young people -- to redefine their role in society. If we are to be successful, youth service must draw on corporate, education and community, as well as government, resources. If we are to be successful, youth service proponents must work together to shape national youth service policy and give our political leaders the benefit of their experience. We want to ensure that what takes shape at the federal level will build on the existing network of successful programs and provide a federal partner for them.

We need your help to take this message to Capitol Hill. This packet is designed to prepare you for visits with your Members of Congress. Please join us in endorsing comprehensive youth service legislation. Move youth service from promise to reality for millions of American young people.

Thank you,

Roger Landrum

FACT SHEET

The Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources Omnibus Youth Community Service Bill (Kennedy Bill).

Nearly a dozen youth service bills have been introduced by U.S. Senators during this Congressional Session. Separate bills have been introduced by Senators Nunn, Mikulski, Pell, Dodd, Graham, McCain, Bumpers, Kennedy, and Moynihan. All have come under the jurisdiction of the Senate Committee on Labor and Human Resources. As committee chairman with a keen personal interest in youth service, Senator Edward Kennedy is in the driver's seat. He has held extensive hearings and consultations on youth service, including many leaders of the youth service movement and young people, and his staff is now in the process of hammering out an omnibus bill divided into five major titles.

Title 1 would provide funding to support school-based youth service programs, including K-12 and college levels. Title1 also encourages examination of existing federal programs to identify additional ways of supporting community service. Appropriations up to $100 million may be requested. The YSA Working Group applauds this title as a way of expanding the existing youth service program network and its best models and practices.

Title 2 would provide for funding to support development of additional full-time youth service corps in states, cities and counties. The amount requested should range between $75 and $150 million. The YSA Working Group strongly supports this title as a powerful way to build upon the network of existing conservation and service corps.

Title 3 would provide funding for pilot projects in selected states to test controversial national service concepts drawn from bills introduced by Senators Nunn, Pell, Mikulski and McCain. The basic idea is federal vouchers for education, first home purchase or job training in exchange for one or two years of full-time national service and/or substantial monthly hours of part-time national service. Funding for this portion of the bill is open to negotiation within a range of $25 million to $250 million. The YSA Working Group supports vouchers as rewards for service in youth corps but is concerned about the political and administrative impact of features of these bills on the existing program network. We do not feel that Title 3 is as high a priority for funding as Titles 1 & 2.

Title 4 would provide for expanding the size of VISTA (Volunteers in Service to America).

Title 5 would provide financial support for senior service programs.

The overall appropriation level for all five titles of the Kennedy omnibus bill is highly uncertain. Predictions range from $100 to $300 million. The Administration may threaten a veto of funding over $25 million. The administrative mechanism for funding decisions is also uncertain; possibilities include the U.S. Department of Education, a new federal Corporation for National Service, and a Trust of the United States. The YSA Working Group supports the Public Trust concept.

Skillful leadership and broad public support will be needed to reconcile the Kennedy Omnibus Bill with youth policy interests on the House side and President Bush's citizen service initiative, and to secure passage in this session of Congress. The House is considering crafting an ominibus youth service bill once the Kennedy bill is reported out of committee.

FACT SHEET

President Bush's "Thousand Points of Light" initiative.

During his successful campaign for the Presidency, George Bush promised to establish a Youth Entering Service (YES) to America Foundation and coined the "thousand points of light" phrase in honor of the American tradition of volunteerism. Bush said he would chair the board of the YES Foundation and to seek $100 million in federal funds to match $100 million in private funds.

After his inauguration, President Bush established a White House Office of National Service headed by Gregg Petersmeyer and submitted a request for $25 million in federal funding in his 1988 budget message to Congress. The President also has been advised by Raymond Chambers, a capital investment whiz, with recommendations about how to proceed.

The President is still in the process of developing the program of the Office of National Service and framing a legislative submission. The program is expected to be primarily a "call to service" and charitable contributions tax reform plan, to be unveiled in June or July.

Mr. Chambers submitted his recommendations to President Bush in early April, reinforcing a broad Call to Service promotional effort for citizens of all ages. Chambers has also chartered a private "Points of Light Foundation," with plans to amass private funds to support volunteerism by Americans of all ages. Initial planning for this foundation emphasizes mentoring for at-risk individuals.

Whether the Petersmeyer and Chambers efforts will be closely integrated or parallel is unclear. The fate of the YES to America Foundation concept in support of the youth service program network is also unclear at this time.

The President's legislative submission will probably have to be reconciled at some point with the Kennedy Omnibus Bill in order to achieve strong bipartisan support and Senate passage, since the President enjoys veto power over any youth service bill passed by Congress.

Youth Service America

We, representatives of organizations with a deep interest in youth service, are unanimous in sending these views to the President and to the Congress of the United States:

1. We applaud President Bush's leadership in announcing his intention to establish a Youth Entering Service (YES) to America Foundation.

2. We are equally heartened by the widespread and bipartisan support in Congress for a variety of youth service legislation.

3. We assure the President and the Congress that our respective organizations will labor tirelessly to vindicate their faith in American youth and in the power of the youth service ideal.

4. We are concerned, however, that in the scramble to enact youth service legislation, the basic integrity and creativity of the youth service movement could be seriously damaged.

5. We therefore ask:

* that any federal legislation build upon the existing network of youth service programs and leadership;

* that school-based, campus-based, and community- based programs which are part-time, and youth service corps which are full-time, all be advanced by federal legislation;

* that youth service proposals be considered in a thoroughly bipartisan fashion;

* that every effort be made to reconcile both executive and legislative branch interests and sponsorship.

6. It is our hope that hearings on all youth service bills will result in a comprehensive bill. In this way, the needs and potentialities of youth service at all ages and in varied settings may be considered.

To aid the Congress and the Executive Branch in their formulation of youth service legislation, administrative arrangements, and funding levels, we offer the following Statement of Principles which reflects our collective judgment about the nature of quality youth service in America.

Youth service is an ideal embodying the best of American values. These values include a concern for others, active contributions by the individual to the life of the community, and working together as partners to meet major social challenges in American society. Today, this ideal is being given fresh expression through a growing and decentralized system of youth service programs based in schools, colleges and universities, states, cities, and communities. Over 50 full-time state and local youth corps are already underway, as well as 450 campus-based programs, more than 3,000 public and private junior and senior high school programs, and additional community-based programs. These programs provide structured opportunities for young people to serve their communities beginning in elementary school and continuing throughout their formative years. Diversity of participation is encouraged and highly valued. Both in-school and out-of-school young people from all segments of our society are involved. Any federal initiatives should build carefully upon this base or the hard work of many years might be sacrificed.

The most effective programs in our emerging national system of youth service share certain common principles. These principles distinguish them from traditional volunteerism and public service work or training programs.

* Service is the central mission of a youth service program.

* Both communities and participating young people view the service projects as needed by, and of real value to, the community.

* Young people are viewed as a vital resource which can help meet pressing human and environmental needs in communities across the nation.

* Community service is recognized as a powerful form of citizenship education that imbues young people with an ethic of social responsibility carried into adulthood.

* Projects and programs are carefully structured and require certain minimum hours of service for a sustained period. Young people are organized in well-planned and well-supervised groups.

* A plan for meeting the developmental needs of young participants -- for self-esteem, education and basic skills, employability, leadership, and a sense of caring for others -- is integrated into the delivery of service, along with a reflective component about the service experience.

* Appropriate incentives and rewards -- such as public recognition, school and college credits, scholarships, stipends or salaries -- are utilized to encourage the participation of young people and to emphasize the value our society places upon the ethic of service.

* Program design provides for adequate training of participants and the staff of community agencies and organizations in which the participants will serve. Rigorous evaluation of programs is taken seriously.

* Programs inculcate a sense of community responsibility and the values of citizenship. Young people are involved in appropriate ways in program design and redirection.

* Programs and projects respond to local needs, are best planned and administered at the state and local levels, and are an integral part of community and school policy affecting youth, human services, and the environment.

Finally, community service is a vital American tradition. We believe that sustained participation in community service ought to become an expected part of growing up in America for all young people. The service by young people is a national treasure and belongs, not to the government, but to the American people. We therefore urge that the entity established by Congress to administer federal funding of youth service be nonpartisan and with a capability of directly supporting the most creative public and private, state and local initiatives across the country. We recommend that this entity be chartered as a Trust of the United States of America.

Tips for a Successful Capitol Hill Visit

- Many of you may not have arranged your visit in advance. However, we encourage you to stop by your Members' offices and leave materials, program information and notes for the Member and the relevant staff person.

- Learn the name of your Representative and your Senators. Look up their building and room number in this packet.

- Before you go (and in the admittedly short time available to you) plan a brief and concise presentation:

  * Lead with your strength -- you are an important source of information about youth service programs in your community or state. Tell them about your program.

  * Emphasize the importance of building on and expanding the existing network.

  * Urge his or her support for comprehensive youth service legislation.

  * Invite the member to the Congressional reception on Thursday, June 8th, 6:00 p.m., in the Russell Senate Caucus Room.

  * Invite the member to visit your program.

- When you arrive at an office, introduce yourself to the receptionist and let her (or him) know you live in the district or state. Ask to spend a few moments with the Representative, the Senator or the staff to discuss issues concerning youth and or youth service programs.

  * Be brief, concise and friendly.

  * Make your presentation, leave your materials.

  * Thank them for the time and consideration.

LOBBYING FOR TAX-EXEMPT NONPROFITS *

This is a very short and simplified guide for tax-exempt groups which have legislative advocacy by members, staff or clients as part of their program. These are federal rules that apply to groups that have the benefit of tax exemption under section 501(c)(3) of the tax code. Check your own state's laws also: some places have no additional restrictions on lobbying by charitable organizations; others require registration of all those who lobby frequently. Federally-funded programs must also consider the additional very strict limitations that generally bar use of such public moneys to lobby Congress or state legislatures. For more detailed information about federal tax and program requirements, see the Children's Defense Fund's publication, Lobbying and Political Activity for Nonprofits ($4.00 postage paid).

Tax Exempt, Private, Nonprofit Organizations Can Spend Some of Their Resources Lobbying Congress and State Legislatures.

WITHIN REASONABLE LIMITS YOU CAN:

-- Write your Congressperson or state legislator on organization letterhead;
-- Call long distance to the Capitol at agency expense;
-- Take a carload of people to the Capitol to meet a legislator or staff and get mileage paid by the agency;
-- Organize a letter writing or phone campaign for a bill;
-- Engage in other activities generally considered "lobbying" or "grass roots lobbying."

THE LIMITS ARE:

-- For small agencies, you can spend up to 15% to 20% of the agency's total resources on lobbying, if the IRS is informed beforehand and certain simple forms are filed. If this filing process is not followed you are still allowed to spend up to 5%, which permits many groups to do all the lobbying they need and want to do. As the size of the agency grows beyond $1 million/year, the 15-20% figure shrinks, according to the formula described in Lobbying and Political Activity for Nonprofits.
-- There is a special smaller limit on "grass roots" lobbying: one-fourth of your overall lobbying limit is the cap on such lobbying that has the purpose of getting the general public to contact legislators and ask them to act on a bill.
-- The lobbying activities must fall within the organization's general "charitable" or "civic" purposes;
-- You must be able to show that no employees or clients were coerced into lobbying.

*Reprinted with permission from the Children's Defense Fund

UNDER IRS RULES, THESE THINGS AREN'T EVEN CONSIDERED LOBBYING (You are permitted to):

-- If you are a membership organization, inform your members (not the general public) of legislative issues critical to the goals of the agency and take positions on them (but telling people to write Congress would still be considered lobbying);
-- Research and conduct non-partisan analyses of legislation and state your position on such issues, as long as you give complete information so that people can draw their own conclusions.
-- Invite legislators (or their staff) to visit your program to learn about your work or to explain what is going on with legislation;
-- Attend workshops on how to lobby, generally;
-- Respond to official written requests by legislative bodies for advice or testimony.

SOME THINGS YOU CAN DO AS A PRIVATE CITIZEN:

-- Work on legislative issues during lunch hours or after work. This does not count as agency lobbying. In public you should convey that you are speaking as a private citizen, although your argument can be based partly on your experience with the agency;
-- Put bumper stickers on your personal car, even if it is used in business;
-- Participate on your own time in other groups that actively discuss politics and issues, and that lobby in that group's name.

WHAT HAPPENS IF THE AGENCY BREAKS THE RULES:

IRS can always do an audit of your agency to see if you are spending too large a portion of your funds on lobbying activities.

-- If IRS substantiates such overspending, and your agency's limit is 5%, they can rescind your tax-exempt status. Then, contributions to your agency would no longer be tax-deductible.
-- If they substantiate such overspending, and your agency's limit is based on the IRS formula that goes up to 15-20 percent, they can levy a 25% tax on the money spent above the limits; and then,
-- If they determine that your agency has exceeded the limits by a substantial amount for four years, IRS can rescind your tax-exempt status.

▶ Metro Stations

◎ Bus drop off point

(You are on your own returning to the Hotel from the Hill.)

METRO: The Washington METRO is easy to use, inexpensive, and clean. You can return to the hotel from Capitol Hill via the METRO from Union Station (Red Line) to the Woodley Park/Zoo Station; or from the Capitol South Station (Orange/Blue Line - transferring to the Red Line at Metro Center) to the Woodley Park/Zoo Station.

TAXIS: Cabs in Washington are accessible and relatively inexpensive. At rush hour (4:00-6:30 pm) it should cost about $5.00 to go from Capitol Hill to the Sheraton.
